| if we update the dashboard manually each time, how do we get the dashboard to auto-update each day, i know it might require connecting to your stocks, bank accounts...etc. is this doable? and what are risks if any? | Yes it needs to connect to a database and do live api requests - you will need to do a login page for security and ensure all end points are secure and use api keys                                                                                                      |

| Hey Team! I noticed there is such rich information in the QAs. Is it possible to get a transcript of the QAs for each session?                                                                                         | They are added to the LMS :)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |

| I had asked one question yesterday but didn't really understand and was convinced, if someone could help me again pls. I have heard people vibe coding apps for days continuous. what does it mean to connect the api and let it do? like how is it possible supposing I have an idea.thank you                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               | You will have to prompt the vibecoding tool to integrate with a database like supabase and then connect to the relevant external tools through api - I would suggest going back to previous recordings of n8n where we covered webhooks as that will help :) |

| 4 days back, I built this entire financial planner for an Indian customer, to plan :- children's education- children's marriage- assets- liabilities- retirement planning- SIP calculator- estate to be left behind- monthly savings- monthly expenditures, with inflation accounted for now as well as in post-retirementWith Astra 6, one shot, one large prompt, it built completely in 40 minutes. In CLAUDE opus 5.5 MAX effort, with 2 edits, it delivered. Overall, presentation-wise and look-and-feel-wise, ChatGPT looked nice with the slices and these and the graphical charts. Claude was made better, and even the downloadable PDF report was much polished in Claude. This is my experience. | Is it a good practice to give control of your computer to Claude cowork. I wouldn't do this. I will do this using local agents instead.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | You can do it with local agents - but one thing to keep in mind is self hosted models tend to be weaker and tend to make more dangerous mistakes like deleting files compared to higher level models like opus                                               |

| Just curious, whether is it possible to transform this into an android app using Claude code and so that I can download atleast in my android phone? I exclude iOS as iOS app publish is very difficult.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Yes you can                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |

| So, Claude design translate the design into code, correct? But when Claude design creates the design, it generates code to create the design, right? Is it possible to shortcut the path by copying the code generated by the design to github?                                                                  | Yes but the code made my design is static so if you want it dynamic with a database then you need Claude code to do it                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
